IT'S ALL SORTED!

Good Sammy is a social enterprise focused on providing meaningful employment opportunities and pathways for Western Australians with disability. Their vision is to create a better future for people with disability and believe in creating inclusive workplaces as this is the foundation for an inclusive society. Good Sammy currently has 27 op shops, located from Albany to Geraldton and employs more than 265 employees with disability, in a variety of roles.

On Wednesday, 31 May, 11 dedicated volunteers from the NPI Eng Projects Team team got together for a day of donation sorting at the Good Sammy Warehouse in Canning Vale. Upon arrival the team was treated to an introduction by volunteer coordinator Karen, followed by an in-depth tour of the facility by Good Sammy's employee Kelly. Kelly, who has been with Good Sammy's for over 3 decades, spoke to the team about her experience with the organisation (or in her words, her Good Sammy's family).

Then it was go time! The team was split into small groups, the first on home donation bag and pamphlet folding. Due to the reduced number of donation bins around Perth, Good Sammy's are increasing the home collection system as a way for people to donate their items from home. The team smashed through this task, folding and wrapping a massive amount of bags, ready for the mailbox drop offs. Meanwhile, other teams were looking after separate areas within the warehouse, one being book categories: kids, adult novels, history, cookbooks, youth, coffee table books and antique/vintage. The team had loads of fun, rediscovering old stories and books from their childhoods.

Good Sammy's were extremely grateful for your time and manpower to get these tasks completed. Thank you, BHP for working so well together, and for such a great cause. We hope to see you back at the Good Sammy Warehouse soon!
